A look at real data: net proton distributions in proton+proton and pion+proton collisions. (As pion beam we take $(\pi^+ + \pi^-)/2$.) The latter represents the contribution from the target. Note that we get 1/2 of the p+p value at the center - as we expected!