p+Pb collisions

Now, let's look at the proton stopping in p+Pb collisions! Compared to p+p, they reach a huge amount of stopping, even in the most peripheral bin we have. This collision is asymmetric: can we still obtain a "projectile component" here? ... we can use π+Pb data to subtract the target component $\rightarrow\rightarrow\rightarrow$